Department of Labor and Industrial Relations: State Provides Pandemic Unemployment Assistance (PUA) Update

DLIR announced that programming updates and federal funding have allowed the department to initiate benefit payments for PUA claimants that have certified eligible claims for the week ending Jan. 2, 2021. It began processing last weekend. The $300 plus-up (FPUC) is included in the payments for PUA claimants. Eligible claimants who certified claims on Sunday, Jan. 9 for the week ending Jan. 8 also had their claims processed, including the $300 plus-up, and will receive payment sometime midweek.

The department is diligently working to build additional programs within its unemployment computer system to process the other revised federal benefits and bring much-needed relief to eligible claimants. Any benefits delayed will be paid retroactively if necessary and claimants will be made whole. The DLIR will make announcements via its website, news releases, in the unemployment insurance portal, and at https://twitter.com/HI_DLIR as it implements provisions of the COVID-19 relief bill.
