Governor's Office:

Unrestricted Inter-island Travel for People Fully Vaccinated in Hawai'i to Begin May 11

Governor Ige announced this afternoon that people who have been fully vaccinated in Hawai'i can resume inter-county travel without COVID-19 testing and quarantine. The exception is for people who have received vaccines, two weeks after their last recommended dose.

"We made the decision to start with an inter-county travel program for those vaccinated in the State of Hawai'i, because we are able to verify the information. This phased approach will allow us to assess the impacts of the program to our pre-departure document check program and screening procedures. Most importantly, we'll be able to assess any impact to our virus transmission rates and healthcare facilities. As always, our number one priority is the health and safety of Hawai'i's people," said Gov. Ige.

Work is underway to develop a validation process for travelers who received vaccinations outside of Hawai'i. Once this process is in operation, the state plans to expand the vaccine exception to include travelers from the continental U.S. and Alaska. "We continue to work with several companies, and I believe solutions that provide the same assurance of integrity for domestic and international travel are forthcoming," Governor Ige said.

Until then, domestic trans-Pacific travelers can avoid mandatory travel quarantine by following the Safe Travels Hawai'i pre-test program requirements. "The sooner we move to herd immunity, the sooner we can get to a new accepted norm and sunset the Safe Travels Hawai'i program altogether," Governor Ige concluded.

Governor Highlights Hawai'i's Progress in the Pandemic Fight

At the afternoon news briefing, Governor Ige pointed to the success Hawai'i has had in fighting COVID-19:

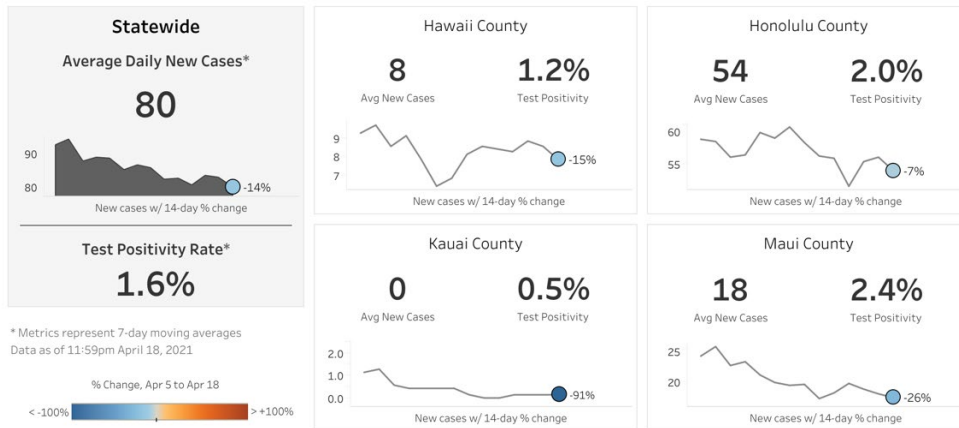

- The vaccination program, along with safe practices, continues to generate the best results in the nation
- Last week (April 11-17), Hawai'i had the lowest death and infection rates in the country
- Hawai'i has had the best health outcomes in the U.S. since March 7, 2020

Governor Ige applauded Lt. Gov. Josh Green, Neighbor Island mayors, Health Director Dr. Libby Char, and HI-EMA Director Kenneth Hara and their teams for their roles in keeping infection rates and the death counts low, as well as their involvement in the development of the inter-island exception for fully vaccinated people. “Together, our #1 priority remains protecting the health of Hawai‘i’s people.”
